Duration: 30 minutesInvocation: GTA Exotics - Exotic Car Tours, Track Track Track & Rent We've seen debris along the trobar of Tropicana Avenue once and again, but for some reason you never thought you'd be a sour looking driver standing next to their smashed vehicle. Driving is a gamble, and much like a trip to the Bellagio chances can be stacked against you in the long run. A recent study found that drivers have an accident on average every 18 years, which means you probably have to deal with a fallout at least once or twice in your life. Whether you're going to get ready for an inevitable or trying to fix the mess, FindLaw has created this Las Vegas car accident manual. The first steps of Nevada's Revised Statutes section 484E detail the legal requirements imposed on drivers after they suffered a car accident. First of all, pull your car over your shoulder so as not to risk criminal liability as a hit and controlled driver. If the accident resulted in an injury, you need to provide basic assistance, such as taking that person to the hospital or calling an ambulance. You also exchange information most frequently with all parties involved in the accident, including the name, address and registration number of the vehicle concerned. If the unsupervised property has been damaged, you must contact the police as soon as possible. It would be a good idea to gather some evidence of the location of the accident before it is fresh. The photo is worth a thousand words, so immediately capture some of the scene and vehicle violations with the iPhone. Jot down a few comments about the circumstances of the accident, including weather and road conditions if applicable. Also, try to gather contact information for all witnesses and ask them what they saw. However, lawyers generally advise clients not to accept liability or apologize for causing an accident, as these statements can be used against you in court to prove that you were actually responsible. Finally, if the accident resulted in an injury, death or more than $750 worth of property damage, you must prepare and report the accident within 10 days of the accident. This form is quite complete, so make sure that you have collected the names, addresses, social security number, driving licence information, insurance information and vehicle details (e.g. Name, model, year and label number) from each driver. Attach a copy of your insurance card and doctor's statements if damage has been done, sign the form and submit it by mail: Nevada DMV 555 Wright Way Carson City, NV 89711 This is a lot of information to remember after a traumatic accident, so why not print a useful checklist that you want to keep in the glove box just in case? Auto Insurance Auto insurance is mandatory for all Nevada drivers. They are required by state law mandatory minimum coverage: $15,000 for injuries per person at the time of the accident; $30,000 for an accident where more than one person is injured; $10,000 for an accident for property damage. Like most states, Nevada follows a failure system set to fix after a car accident. A person who has been legally guilty of causing an accident (and his insurance) must pay damages to anyone who has been injured or whose property has been damaged. Contrast this rare guilt-free states where drivers recover from their insurance company, regardless of whose fault it was an accident. Types of claims The most common lawsuit after an auto accident is negligence. Negligence regulates unintentional injuries. You must show that the other party has not used a reasonable level of supervision in such circumstances. In the event of serious accidents in which people died, family members of the deceased may be sued for wrongful death. This type of lawsuit seeks to recover lost wages, lost friendships and funeral expenses. Alternatively, you can try to sue the vehicle manufacturer for liability for the products. To succeed, you must indicate a design or manufacturing defect that caused the accident. Proof of defect usually requires an expert analysis of the car, and the case can be quite technical. Comparative negligence The Nevada legislature adopted a modified theory of comparative negligence, which is a partial legal defense, reducing the amount of damage that the plaintiff can recover as a result of a negligent claim based on the extent to which the plaintiff's negligence contributed to the damage. Under the Nevada Statute, each party is found guilty and the plaintiff's recovery is reduced in proportion to his liability. For example, if your vehicle requires $1,000 to repair due to an accident that was found to be 10% of your fault, you will be able to recover 90%, or $900. However, the modified aspect of this law means that claimants who are found to be more than 50% guilty (the so-called 51% rule) are prohibited from recovering the debt. Time limit nevada plaintiffs have two years from the date of the accident to file their personal injury, wrongful death or product liability claims, or the judge will dismiss the lawsuit regardless of its substance. However, the claimants have three years to recover the property damage. This so-called statute of limitations prevents plaintiffs from forcing defendants to defend themselves against incidents they may remember less than the night before (much less years). Bringing a claim The filing of a claim is as easy as writing a short complaint describing the incident and asking for monetary compensation. You can file your suit at the Regional Justice Center at 200 Lewis Avenue to handle it yourself. Alternatively, consider planning a free consultation with an experienced personal injury lawyer. Plaintiff side lawyers usually work on a contingency basis, so their fee is a certain percentage of your winnings instead of an hourly fee. Talk to a lawyer about your Las Vegas car crash legal aid can be invaluable when you get it therefore it should come as no surprise that lawyer's fees can Cool. But a good lawyer can save money, time and lots of intangible assets when the chips are down. If you're in a car accident in Las Vegas, insurers may not resolve legal issues.
